The leading hotel and resort company is now accepting reservations, as guests are being encouraged to travel to the most sought-after destinations by way of its private aircraft. Aside from 32 existing one-of-a-kind experiences, Four Seasons is introducing a new, 16-day "Asia Unveiled" itinerary, a curated journey solely based within the continent, including destinations such as Tokyo, Bali and the Maldives.

"The Four Seasons Private Jet Experience is a testament to our commitment to innovation and the creative pursuit of the extraordinary," said Christian Clerc, president of Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts, in a statement.

"We continue to re-imagine the conventional limits of travel to deliver exceptional luxury experiences that are unmatched," he said. "We invite travel enthusiasts to explore the world with us, enjoying Four Seasons genuine care, attention to detail and passion for excellence that has defined our brand the world over."

Exclusive excursions

Aboard the Four Seasons jet, which touts the widest and tallest cabin in its class and is capable of accommodating up to 48 globetrotters amongst its hand-crafted seats, lucky journeyers can expect personalized luxury paired with best-in-class customer service from the hotelier.

Besides the latest addition, Four Seasons has opened bookings on its site for popular trips such as "African Wonders", offering access to ancient wonders and awe-inspiring landscapes across Egypt, Rwanda and South Africa, and "Timeless Encounters", which hits Oahu, Bora Bora, Sydney and more.

In terms of lodging, guests will be housed at international Four Seasons locations, or at luxury accommodations selected by the Four Seasons team in more remote areas. The company will announce additional 2024 itineraries later this year.

The company recently revealed how it continues to offer elevated, high-touch service by relying on technology and data to enhance personalization (see story).
