Every year, the event recognizes five women who have exhibited courage and leadership. The award ceremony for the 13th annual DVF Awards will take place in Venice on Sept. 1.

Honoring inspiring women

Ms. von Furstenberg and the The Diller-von Furstenberg Family Foundation began The DVF Awards in 2010 as an effort to identify and honor women who are driven in positively impacting the lives of other women.

Every year, five awards are given to these special, powerful women. Every honoree receives $100,000 for their non-profit organization.

This year, French politician and president of the European Central Bank Christine Lagarde will receive The Lifetime Leadership DVF Award; American filmmaker Ava DuVernay is set to receive The Inspiration DVF Award; Ukrainian entrepreneur Zoya Lytvyn will receive The International DVF Award; Chadian environmental activist Hindou

Oumarou Ibrahim is set to receive The Inspiration DVF Award; and the women of Afghanistan will receive The International DVF Award.

Ms. von Furstenberg continues her work in honoring women who are changemakers, while she also has been recently honored with recognition.

Earlier this year, Ms. von Furstenberg was awarded the 2022 Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg Woman of Leadership Award.

Ms. von Furstenberg was honored at the Library of Congress next month at an exclusive invitation-only ceremony and gala. This was the third distribution of the award (see story).
