The fifth edition will be several maisons first time at the event, including Belmond, which will hold several contemporary art exhibitions in the gardens of its hotels in Italy. LVMH's Les Journes Particulieres will take place on October 14, 15 and 16 as ticket booking rounds have offered a different selection of events to choose from, where several luxury ambassadors are set to make appearances.

Les Journes Particulieres

Known as the ultimate immersive experience into the workings of LVMH houses, Les Journes Particulieres is a free event with global offerings. The event serves as an opportunity to highlight the talent and craftsmanship behind every participating LVMH brand.

The event is also an ideal opportunity to intimately observe the savoir-faire of maisons.

As Belmond holds exhibitions, Tiffany & Co. will also be opening its doors to its jewelry design workshops in New York to the public for the first time.

Disparate workshops, tours, tastings, exhibitions will be happening globally.

Berluti is beckoning consumers to discover its Bespoke Tailoring Workshop in Paris and Mot & Chandon is inviting eventgoers to the the restored iconic residence Chteau de Saran.

Louis Vuitton is also propping open the doors to its new workshops in Vendme, among other house activations.
