Swiss watchmaker Vacheron Constantin is bringing a high watchmaking pop-up back to its premiere market.

The city of Dubai hosted the launch of the brand's inaugural appointment-only salon concept last year. This season, "Suite 1755" is celebrating a return to the Mandarin Oriental Jumeira, introducing new exclusives and highlighting the work of several local creatives until April 2025.

"We are thrilled to bring Suite 1755 back to Dubai, where we embrace the spirit of the region and the quest for excellence that defines Vacheron Constantin," said Christophe Ramel, managing director of Middle East, India and Africa at Vacheron Constantin, in a statement.

"Our commitment extends beyond crafting exceptional timepieces; it's about preserving the artistry and savoir-faire that have shaped the Maison since 1755," Mr. Ramel said. "Within these walls, we build enduring connections, weave stories, and create lasting bonds."

"Vacheron Constantin takes immense pride in welcoming connoisseurs, watch enthusiasts and kindred spirits to be a cherished part of a legacy that spans generations."

Local stylings

The bespoke experience has reached five different locations, counting a three-month run in West Hollywood (see story) among its stops since getting started in March of 2022.

This fall, Vacheron Constantin circled back on Dubai, welcoming clients to this latest iteration, live as of Oct. 26, 2023.

The current Mandarin Oriental Jumeira setup is larger this time around, now set on the hotel's second floor, overlooking the waters of the Arabian Gulf.

This version of "Suite 1755" was created by Dubai-based Saudi architect and interior designer Danah Almohaisin, and brings the expert's private style into a more public setting.

The boutique space takes inspiration from its cultural landscape of origin, additionally drawing on the brand's history and heritage.

Art and furniture pieces from a variety of local creatives including artist Muneerah Almullah, artist and interior designer Omar Al Gurg and designer Khalid Alshafar complement exclusive Vacheron Constantin timepieces.
