Hospitality group Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts is making its return to a highly sought-after cultural hub.

The group, together with Hong Kong-based real estate group Fung seng Prosperity Holdings Limited, has announced plans to reopen the Four Seasons Hotel Shanghai. Following an extensive renovation and redevelopment project that started in 2022, the property is expected to welcome its first guests in 2027.

"The return of Four Seasons to Shanghai will present a new luxury hospitality offering that captures the vibrant character of this world-class city," said Bart Carnahan, president of global business development, portfolio management and residential at Four Seasons, in a statement.

"As we expand our portfolio in China, Shanghai has maintained its position as one of the most important markets for luxury travelers," Mr. Carnahan said. "With our long-term partners at Fung seng Prosperity Holdings Limited, we are pleased to bring the signature service, quality and care of Four Seasons to our brand-new experience in Shanghai very soon."

Heart of the city

The 44-story hotel will house 160 rooms and suites upon its reopening in a few short years.

Located on Huaihai Zhong Road in the Huangpu district of Puxi, the Shanghai base is surrounded by shopping, entertainment and dining spots.

Awaiting the luxury lodging option's reprise, the historic neighborhood is lined with neoclassical Art Deco villas and modern architecture, embracing heritage and contemporary ideals.
