

NEWS BRIEFS

Luxury accessories, DVF, Orient-Express and fashion law – News briefs

September 13, 2012

---

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury marketing:

Luxury fashion designers bank on accessories

In shows like Project Runway the focus is all on designing garments: dresses, tops, pants, skirts, the list goes on. But it appears that while you can “make it” in the fashion industry by designing clothes, you won’t necessarily turn a profit. So where does the money lie? It is all in accessories, per JustLuxe.

Sign up now

Luxury Daily

Click here to read the entire story on JustLuxe

Yvan Mispelaere out at DVF

His abrupt departure was announced just 48 hours after von Furstenberg’s spring runway show, which was met with mixed reviews, according to WWD.

Click here to read the entire story on WWD

Orient-Express plans luxury cruise in Myanmar

The company behind the famed Eastern & Oriental Express train line between Singapore and Bangkok is laying out plans for a new luxury service – this time a new river cruise up Myanmar’s Ayeyarwady river, said the Wall Street Journal.

Click here to read the entire story on the Wall Street Journal

In fashion circles, lawyers becoming sought-after accessories

One of the hottest new trends in fashion is emerging from an unlikely venue: law school. Fashion law is a burgeoning niche practice in New York and Los Angeles, both hubs of the approximately $200 billion U.S. apparel market, with both legal firms and design houses hiring specialist attorneys, Reuters reports.

Click here to read the entire story on Reuters

---

© Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.