

NEWS BRIEFS

Prada, Miu Miu, BMW and China – News briefs

May 28, 2013

By STAFF REPORTS

Today in luxury marketing:

Prada says not planning on making acquisitions

Italian fashion house Prada is not planning on returning to the acquisition trail for now, its chief executive said, dousing speculation it might be in the hunt for deals, per Reuters.

Sign up now

Luxury Daily

Click here to read the entire story on Reuters

No Milan show for Miu Miu

Italian brand Miu Miu has been a regular fixture at Paris Fashion Week since 2006 - and Miuccia Prada intends for it to stay that way, per British Vogue.

Click here to read the entire story on British Vogue

BMW Pininfarina Gran Lusso Coupé bows at Villa d'Este

The first collaboration between BMW and Pininfarina is this blunt-force, two-door called the BMW Pininfarini Gran Lusso Coupe revealed at the Concorso d'Eleganza Villa d'Este, AutoBlog reports.

Click here to read the entire story on AutoBlog

Lane Crawford: Betting luxury is still in fashion in China

Worried about the slowdown in the Chinese economy? Or Beijing's austerity drive? Lane Crawford, the iconic Hong Kong purveyor of luxury brands, is not, the Financial Times reports.

Click here to read the entire estory on the Financial Times

© Napean LLC. All rights reserved.

Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.